Bannocks On the War Path. The following private dispatch was ELKO, June 7th. A Shoshone Indian came into town A Shoshone Indian came into town this morning from Duck valley and reports to Gheen that a large body of Bannocks, three-quarters of a mile long came down on Duck valley reservation and drove the whites and Indians out of the valley. They are safely now in Cornucopia, except the keeper of the reservation, who would not leave. The Bannocks threaten to kill Gheen and all of the tribe.

These Banuceks are a warlike tribe of Indians from Oregon. If this report shall be corroborated northeastern Nevada may have a little Indian war of its own. This will give nutriment to the Times-Review.

Crops, etc., North.

From Mr. S. A. Gibson, proprietor of the Pollard house, who has just re turned from a trip into Lassen and Plumas counties, California, we learn that the crops in that section are very fine, and the yield from that section will be very large this year. He says that the grasshoppers are not troublesome to any marked extent in 83; Nannie Fitzgerald, 78; Bertha Sierra valley. On two ranches there Odett, 88; Prilla Odett, 88; Eva Odett, are some of these destructive insects and they have injured a few acres of growing grain, but the farmers do not apprehend much danger from them.

The mines near Quincy and Crescent ville are doing well, and taking out a considerable quantity of paying ore.

CRICKETS.—Tuley Frank says there are thousands of crickets as large as the end of your thumb out in this end of Spanish Spring valley. "Yes," Frank said, "millions are there." He went on to tell how he fought them once in Winnemucca valley. He predicted that unless they received attention pretty soon, the farmers of Truckee meadows will be carried away by the invaders. We understand that they can be driven by various devices, and it would be well to look out for them. A party was organized on the meadows recently and the crickets will receive the courtesies due them and some which they have not asked for.

Tan REASON. - Many of our citzens were not much surprised to-day at a good old rancher and his wife who came galloping across the bridge on the keen run. The Sheriff dropped his hat trying to evertake them, and and Barlow threatened to shoot the man if he did not stop. He finally Oakland, are in town for a few days. hove to, and in explaining his conduct said: "Well I heerd this mornin' that Gray & Isaacs was sellin' out. we came down too quick. There was a good many ahead of us but we found most of 'em.'

Also to the ladies and gentlemen who kindly assisted at the festi val. The receipts from the fair and festival amount to $254 75. This sum goes with a much larger one toward the construction of a large school building for the Sister's school.

This company took 126 tons of their basest ore to this mill and are obtaining the bullion from it ore is as base perhaps as any in this county, containing as base metals zinc and antimony.

SEVERE ACCIDENT. -About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mr. R. Leeper received this morning by one of our met with quite a severe and painful accident near the corner of West and Fourth streets. He was holding a young horse which Master Riggen was mounting. The horse became frightened and gave a sudden start, throwing Mr. Leeper violently to the ground, and causing a severe sprain to the left thigh joint and perhaps slightly fracturing the thigh bone. The skin of lis left forearm was also slightly abraded. This morning Mr. Leeper's thigh was badly swellen. Whilst he was not struck by the horse, but only fell on the hard ground, yet his fall was so sudden and in such a way as to inflict the above injuries. He may be confined to his a room for several weeks.

GRAND OFFICERS. - The Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., in session at Virg nia, yesterday elected the following officers for the ensuing term: Grand Master, W. H. Davenport of Eureka; Deputy Grand Master, J. C. Smith of Virginia; Grand Warden, E. P. Davis of Aurora; W. H. Hill of Virginia, G. S.; Representative G. L. U. S., Wm. Lucas of Reno. The next session will he held in Virginia city.

Rumors.-A rumor having gained ome circulation that two members of the tax-payers committee refuses to act, it may be as well to predict that proper action will be taken should the entire committee resign. We do not believe, however, that any member will be found wanting.

FOR THE BAY. - Mr. A. H. Wilbur, the Western Union telegraph operator, goes to San Francisco to-night. Mr. Wilbur will be absent two or three weeks. Mr. A. B. McCoy, operator at Virginia city, will fill Mr. W's. place uring the latter's absence.

LADIES, TAKE NOTICE .- Weil Brothers, who have lately opened a branch of the Cleveland cloak and suit factory on Virginia street, desire to warn the ladies of Reno of the fact that they do not sell 17 yards of calico for $1, and overcharge in other articles to make up for it. But they do sell anything in their line cheaper than any house in Reno which buys from western dealers. There are certain dealers in Reno who are anxious to disclaim that they own the bank of England, or a peddler's pack. We accept the sentiment. We know they are not proprietors of the bank in question, and if they paid twenty-five cents on the dollar for their goods they would certainly not have a peddler's pack left.

We have been reading to-day the orations, theses and poems which were the late graduation at the University of California. The refreshing sea breeze rustled the oak leaves, the bo quets and wreaths hung upon the class tree, friends and parents were there and the sighing breeze took up music and perfume as it travessed the beautiful college grounds. There was feasting and merriment, too, about that class tree, and love and pride and tenderness went out towards the young men who stood there in the doorway of life. Old men and staid professors looked on in quiet, thinking perhaps of their own youth and strength, while the actors before them had naught in heart or hand, but the day with its mirth and display. We saw and heard all this we read, just as it was one bright June day in '75. Yet this was not the train of thought awakened by these studdied literary efforts and the rememberance of our own commencement day. We found in the same paper a manly effort, from one who gradnated into life years ago, and there was something grotesque in the comparison. Here were his young friends talking of worlds, centuries space and time, while he, their senior, found his hands full with to-day and man. Here was the young orator, speaking with an experience which was all joyful, greements. about ideal conditions which could alone be more enjoyable. Here was the man whom the world had jostled, The above will also furnish foed for admitting the impossibility of youthful hopes, and urging the value of practice and experience. The untried believes the world is easy of conquest; he will not let these old fogies frighten him with experience, because he will make his own experience. The man of years looks in upon these thoughts and while he sees their weakness hesitates to deprive the youth of a dream which is the treasure of every man, but once during a life. The young knight would take his memento from the class tree, and decorated with this badge wage the fight without fear; he has selected his hobby and is eager to mount and be away; the world is full of fame and pleasure for him, and he is eager to possess them. And yet but a few years hence he will envy his quiet senior who has learned that roses are the flowers of spring, and the modest evergreen alone survives the year.

There have been numberless battles which history has not recorded, and there are unrecorded graves where lie unnumbered hopes, born of youth and strength. The aged veteran who delights in youth and its vigor, finds his pleasure in remembering his own buoyant springtime, when plans were made which compassed nothing.

the sprig of evergreen from his class tree. In a few years it will be the only survivor of his college possessions and the hopes which once dec-orated his youthful life.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The New York Mercury editor, having no doubt heard of us, sends us a copy of his paper. We were at a loss to know how we had deserved the present, but upon closer inspection we resd at the "Fair Berkeley" during find an article which was no doubt intended for us. It is a sepulchural warning against over-working the brain. The editor cites us to Walter Scott, Dean Swift, Dickens, Deacon Parkinson and other examples of this over-work. The arguments which the Mercury cites to us are entirely convincing, and although we have at times been rather industrious, we shall cease. The necessity of checking off large collections, and directing the disposition of a considerable bank account has caused us anxiety of late. But enough said, sir. We acknowledge our fault, and will try to correct it.

The Enterprise says:

People should not mistake love of peace for irresolution. Democrats will find that President Hayes knows how to deal with rebellion should they again attempt to inaugurate it.

And in another paragraph adds: The Democrats will find food for thought in the fact that the hot discussion in Republican newspapers cussion in Republican newspapers about "indorsing" or "ignoring" the administration in the party platforms this fall has suddenly ceased. There is acarcely a word on the subject to be seen in the newspapers. The paramount idea is to keep the party solid against its old enemy, and not to waste ammunition on internal disagreements.

The Democrats have been surprise all along that it ever commenced. thought in the brain of Roscoe Coukling.

Concerning the Potter deviltry the Enterprise says to the Sentinel:

Notwithstanding the general curiosity to know "how Mr. Hayes got his seat," do you believe a fair investigation is intended? Alexander H. Stephens says it is not intended to be fair. Finally, don't you believe that the first object is simply to "catch votes," and that the ultimate hope is to precipitate a new revolution?

Now that is all correct, but we mildly suggest that it was unkind for the Enterprise to say "catch votes." That paper sustained Mr. Cassidy in his vote-catching proposition throughout. Who sustains him now? Not one paper in the State. Mr. Sentinel, your Comstock friend has reversed his engines.

The Eureka Republican lately drew from a pigeon hole the record of Geo. W. Cassidy as State Senator. The body of the document was examined and then the Republican editor grasped it by the hair of the head and dragged it around the office until it was a total wreck. An account of the editor's supreme disgust appeared in the Republican and the Reveille says But enough of this. We all have if this attack on the Sentinel's editor the same lessons to learn. Experience can not be borrowed, and as the young graduate turns from his college and acknowledgement of the Republidoor we advise him to preserve well can's existence, then he has the toughest hide on record.

> The Stock Report naively reports: The Carson Tribune is shaping the politics of Nevada. Other Silver State papers put in protests now and then, but they are of no avail.

The Republican says:

The character of the candidates will

> The Reveille has been instructing the Sentinel in regard to the Potter resolution, and in conclusion is unkind enough to ask the following if a conflict of opinion should ensue.

We hope that the town may be provided with more school facilities.

We believe it can be accomplished by an understanding between the Trustees and those who are dissatisfied. This would prevent all opposition.

If political trickery, and putting up jobs, and bulldozing men into office, and playing it low down in office and out of office were penitentiary offenses, where would the virtues editor of the Sentinel be? It makes us "larf" to hear him talk about investigation. broad conundrum:

Yes; there is is also some virtue in the native specimen. Democratic editors might inspect the record of Anderson, the crutch upon which the crippled Potter resolution now leans.

Dr. Nobeling acknowledges that he had accomplices in his attempted assassination of Emperor William, and that he was eslected by drawing of lots to commit the deed. So far he refuses to give the names of his fellow-consp-irators. He will probably die of his wounds. There are great hopes of the Emperor's complete recovery.

On re-convening of the committee, Judge Levissee testified that he had been offered by one Asher $100,000 to cast his vote as an elector for Tilden. Asher was the only person who had spoken to witness on the subject.

In response to a request to detail as much as he remembered of the con-versation with Asher, Levissee said versation with Asher, Levissee and that after a few preliminary remarks Asher asked him if he would be willing to accept a round sum, say $30,000 or $40,000, and refuse to accept his certificate as an elector. He gave Asher to understand that he thought it was worth more and finally said: "Tell your man who has money

It is a question whether the records of State have not been tampered with in aid of the Tilden plot. As early as Novem-ber last many of the most important documents appertaining to the election of 1876 were missing from the office of the Secretary of State. These include States Commission, the result will be various consolidated statements from the bulldozed parishes, all of which passed into the custody of the Nicholl's government.
